Here's one parson, at least, who has a fine consideration for the comfort of his congregation, and the "short hours" clause might be adopted with great advantage by some of the Maysville pastors.—Public Ledger.

Now, really, what does the Ledger man know about a Maysville church, or the length of the Sunday services? Some people would tramp miles in a street parade with the temperature over 100°, and then complain about the churches being too warm, and think a half hour sermon too long. There's no place more comfortable than the churches these hot days.

SPEAKING of Judge Parker's courageous act in sending that telegram to the Democratic National convention, giving the Democrats an opportunity to name some one else if they did not endorse his views on the money question, the St. Paul Globe says:

In that single utterance he has found a comprehension in the minds and a place in the hearts of the people that he can never lose. In a few moments he has advanced his cause more than by all the eloquent periods of supporters. The people know him now, and nothing can make them forget the daring and the nobility of the act almost without precedent.

This is the man for the Democracy. This is the sign and token of leadership. This is the man for custodian of the destinies of the republic, whom neither hope nor fear nor ambition can swerve one line from his utter fealty to duty and to honor. Judge Parker has spoken; and the reverberations of his speech will echo through the land until that day of next November, when the people shall come to judgment.

CARRYING CONCEALED DEADLY WEAPONS.

Here is a strong flash of common sense from an unsuspected source. Discussing the recent proposal in Kentucky to make it a "felony" to carry a concealed deadly weapon, the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette says that "the present penalties would be sufficient if enforced in a proper way, but that juries will not send a man to the penitentiary and infamously him for the carrying of a concealed deadly weapon, since there are occasions when the carrying of a pistol is for defense and not for assault."

It is an act not wrong in itself, but made so by the statute only. If enacted into law the "felony" bill would go to the lumber room of non-enforced statutes, as did the statute which imposed a penitentiary residence for the man who gambled even to the moderate extent of playing a quiet game of poker in his residence, with one-cent ante and five-cent limit. The result of that statute is the practical exemption of gambling from punishment at the hands of the law. The Phelps measure is severity overdoing itself.

Such measures are certainly not democratic. They practically deprive the law-abiding citizen of the right of self defense, and give dangerous immunity to the hoodlum, the "bookie", and the cowardly bully of the grog-shop and the street, who respect a well-aimed pistol even when they defy the "billy" of the police. Litigious ruffians have actually shot down unarmed judges. One desperado was shot down by a U. S. Marshal to protect a Federal judge who should have been able, with a good pistol, to protect himself.

In certain well-regulated Anglo-Saxon communities these social monstrosities are cast off in the general process of evolution as obstructive and misfits. But repressive measures which destroy the individuality and personal resource of the decent citizen mischievously postpone the desired result by indefinitely perpetuating the reign of the brute. Society was even better in the days of the duello

DEMOCRATIC TICKET MEETS WITH GENERAL APPROVAL.

Not only has the Democratic national ticket aroused a high degree of enthusiasm among Democrats, remarks the Indianapolis Sentinel, but nearly every really independent newspaper in the country speaks in terms of praise of both ticket and convention. And a great many straight-out Republican papers have also said some very decent things. For instance, here is the New York Tribune saying this and more to the same effect: "Judge Parker is wisely respected in this State for the conspicuous ability he has shown in politics and on the bench, and for the purity and integrity of his private life. Every man who knows him esteems him. The Republicans of New York have nothing but good words to say about him in his private capacity and in his judicial activities." And as to the independent Republican press the Philadelphia Ledger may be taken as an example. It says: "There is no such example in our political history of a candidate thus willing to decline a nomination to the Presidency, unanimously and hopelessly tender him by his party, if it exacted any concealment of his convictions, any surrender or compromise on vital principles. He might have remained as silent as the platform, and put some evasive construction on it afterward. That course would not have satisfied his sense of honor. Judge Parker has thus early shown that a man who knows how to maintain silence when silence is fitting can speak with force and effect when speech is called for. He has put himself at once in the position of a leader, and to the conservative confidence that has been felt in him heretofore will now be added a measure of enthusiastic recognition that will make him a very formidable candidate."

Pages upon pages of commendatory articles from every nook and corner of the country could be reproduced if it were necessary. But it is not. The country knows that with Judge Parker in the White House its affairs will be wisely and safely administered. As matters stand in Mr. Roosevelt's hands no one knows what's going to happen, nor when and how, nor how much.

THE FINAL SUMMONS.

Mrs. Mary J. Stiles Passed Away Tuesday Morning—Death of Mrs. Thomas Breen.

The venerable Mrs. Mary J. Stiles died Tuesday morning at 1 o'clock at her home in the Sixth ward of general debility, in the seventy-ninth year of her age. She spent most of her life at Germantown. Two sons and one daughter—Messrs. A. P. and William Stiles and Miss Elvira Stiles survive her. Her husband, the late Cornelius Stiles, died four years ago at Germantown aged eighty-two years.

The remains were taken to Germantown this morning where the funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. H. Politt of the M. E. Church, South, at 11 o'clock, the interment following in the cemetery at that place.

MRS. THOMAS BREEN.

Mrs. Thomas Breen died at 6:30 o'clock this morning at the home of the family on East Fourth street, aged sixty-seven years. Mrs. Breen fell and injured herself some time ago and her death was largely the result of this accident. Her husband survives and she leaves one sister, Mrs. P. H. Breen. The funeral will take place Friday at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's Church. Burial at Washington.

—Miss Brent Fredricks is the guest of the Misses Pearl and Mabel Johnson of Latonia.

The outing given by Rev. Father Jones to the young members of his congregation in Conlon Bros.' beautiful grove, Tuesday, was indeed enjoyed by those present; the day was an ideal one to spend in the country and the trip on the elegant steamer Laurance was delightful. Captain Phister personally gave his attention to the care of the youngsters while on the boat and under his careful guidance the party was taken to and from the grounds without a single accident to mar the occasion. Rev. Father Delaney of Mayfield accompanied the party and spent the day with them. Mr. W. A. Cole managed the outing and much is due his careful supervision of this delightful affair.

CHOKING CATARRH CURED.

Your Money Back if Hyomei Does Not Cure You.

"Use Hyomei and be cured of catarrh," is what all who have tried it for that disease say to their friends.

It is the easiest thing in the world to stop catarrh at its beginning if you use Hyomei. Just breathe the health-giving, balsamic air for a few minutes and your catarrh will be cured. In the worst cases of this disease, chronic or acute, Hyomei used four or five times a day is all that is needed to soon effect a cure.

In this city and neighboring towns, there are hundreds who can testify to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh. Many of the staunchest friends of this remedy to-day began its use with little hope that they would be cured, but as J. J. Wood & Son offered to refund the money if it did not cure, they decided to try it on that plan, and were soon restored to health.

Mrs. E. N. Forsythe is quite ill at her home on East Third street.

The Christian Church is quenching the thirst of its Sunday school scholars during the sultry weather with cool and delicious lemonade. This is a pleasing innovation and greatly appreciated by the little folks.—Public Ledger.

The facts in this matter could have been obtained from any officer of the school. The church is not serving the lemonade. The Superintendent and his co-workers are entitled to the credit of this "innovation."

The Ledger man seems to be resting under the prevalent misconception that the Sunday school is a place for "little folks" only. Nearly half the members of the above school are of mature years.
